By *Business Travel News

Montvale, NJ (February 03, 2006) – Dolce International, the global hospitality company specializing in the meetings experience for its customers, announced that Chairman and Managing Director Andrew Dolce was recently named by Business Travel News as one of the 25 most influential executives of the business travel industry for 2005. This is Mr. Dolce's second appearance on Business Travel News' top 25 list.

Mr. Dolce earned the distinction for launching change in the conference center industry's once strict pricing structure, known as the complete meetings package (CMP), to target new business growth. The result for Dolce International was tremendously successful and spurred other conference center chains to reconsider how they market corporate meetings services.

Andrew Dolce founded Dolce International 25 years ago and turned it into a global hospitality company specializing in the meetings experience, with properties throughout the U.S., Canada and Europe.

Business Travel News has been the voice of authority for corporate travel buyers throughout North America for over 20 years.
