New Chef inspired by passion for gastronomy at Dolce

Dolce Frégate, in Provence, France, has a new chef, Joël Bach, a 43 year old with a passion for authentic Mediterranean food. Joël joins Frégate from Le Pré au Clerc, one of Dijon's most well respected restaurants, and represents Dolce International's commitment to producing a superior dining experience.

Gastronomy is very important at Dolce. The focus is on the quality, presentation and variety of its food programme, providing delegates with a balanced and extensive choice of menus, especially with multiple-day meetings. The excellence of the dining experience at each Dolce conference destination is based around the expertise of the chef and each property has a practised chef that creates consistent 4-star standards for delegates at every dining occasion.

Besides a main dining room for delegates, each Dolce destination in mainland Europe and North America has an admirable a-la-carte restaurant. At Dolce Am Kurpark near Frankfurt, the restaurant has recently re-opened after the completion of an exciting renovations programme and is located in a beautiful winter garden with splendid views. The fine-dining restaurant, In de Oude Watermolen at Dolce Kasteel Vaalsbroek in the Netherlands, delights guests with a menu that includes classic French cuisine as well as traditional regional culinary specialities.

Congratulations go to Alain Montigny, the executive chef at Dolce Chantilly near Paris, who has recently been accepted to the exclusive Club of Chefs, by the Academie Nationale de Cuisine. Another demonstration of Dolce's commitment to hiring the very best chefs a region has to offer.

By employing talented chefs and providing beautiful and spacious dining facilities, Dolce International continues to ensure delegates at their destinations can look forward to superbly prepared food at every occasion.
